

Every year, Galveston Historical Foundation (GHF) compiles a list of historic sites in Galveston County that are at risk of being lost. The “danger” can be in the form of damage, neglect or proposed development. The purpose of the list is to highlight the area’s endangered resources, garner public support and assist property owners in preserving the sites any way possible. To create the list, GHF asks members of the community as well as visitors to help by nominating sites that are important to the heritage of our cities within the county of Galveston at risk of being lost.

The Heritage at Risk List is not limited to just buildings, but includes landscapes, sites, objects, and monuments that compose the cultural landscape of Galveston County.

APPLICATION DEADLINE: MAY 31, 2019

Three major criteria for listing

- Listed properties or resources should be locally, regionally or nationally significant.
- Resources must have an identifiable threat to their preservation such as proposed demolition, critical damage, or significant deterioration.
- The preservation of the site will contribute to the promotion of Galveston County’s heritage.
