In 1975, the Galveston Historic Homes Tour began during the aggressive preservation movement taking place on Galveston Island. The mission of the tour is the same today as it was then - to bring awareness to the wealth of architectural and historical resources on Galveston Island; to showcase the diversity of the architectural styles and lifestyles of each historic home and its inhabitants; to encourage the purchase and revitalization of historic homes; and to benefit the programs and projects of Galveston Historical Foundation (GHF).

In the over four decades the tour has been in place, more than 400 properties have been featured, some more than once. From humble cottages to grand mansions, loft conversions in commercial buildings to unique adaptations of corner grocery stores and fire houses, the Island’s diverse architecture has been highlighted for the enjoyment of thousands of annual tour visitors. One of the most unusual aspects of the tour is that these are privately owned homes that owners have opened their doors for visitors to get a first-hand look at how innovative, comfortable and "livable" historic structures can be. Also, each year patrons are treated to a Rehabilitation in Progress property, giving a "behind the plaster" look at what is entailed in the rehab or restoration of a historic structure.

GHF doesn’t accomplish this feat alone. Each year dozens of corporations, businesses and individuals support the annual tour through invaluable monetary and in-kind sponsorship. In-kind backing by local and national media enables GHF to publicize this favorite springtime annual event, always held the first two weekends in May.
